INTRODUCTION

NOTWITHSTANDING the fact that Domestic Art is a comparatively new subject in our schools, there are certain fairly well defined sub-divisions of the whole field, each of which has a body of subject-matter more or less definitely organized. It is the purpose of this bulletin to aid in furthering this organization.

The outlines given are in no sense intended as courses of study. They are simply classified topics of fundamental work from which courses can be made. The aim has been to organize the subject-matter under the different sub-divisions and to give some controlling ideas which will aid in adapting the work to conditions and needs of various schools.

It is necessary at present to give some work in the high schools, which properly belongs in the grades, owing to the fact that very little work in Domestic Art is being done as yet, in the elementary schools.

Some points to be kept in mind in planning a course of study:

1. Environment and needs of the student.
2. Stage of development and dominant interests.
3. Previous work.
4. The value of the subject-matter selected,—it must be worthwhile in itself.
5. Real processes with real things must be performed.
6. The educational value of the work.
 - a. Every problem must be educative,—it must never be mere doing; it must give opportunity for gaining knowledge and power.
 - b. The work must be of such a character as to develop creative ability and the æsthetic nature.
 - c. It must be connected constantly with activities in the home and in the community.

ILLUSTRATIVE MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT

Illustrative material and laboratory equipment are necessary in many phases of the work, therefore a list of such material, and where it can be obtained is given in this bulletin.

The bibliography at the end has been compiled to aid teachers in selecting books for Domestic Art and Domestic Science work.

Outline of Domestic Art for the High School
